How Does Dial-Up Work?

Dial-Up Internet access works just like a phone connection, except that the parties at the two ends of the line are computer devices rather than people.

Once you have connected, the devices can send and receive data freely, however speeds will ultimately be limited to the capabilities of the slower computer.

What Do I Need For Dial-Up?

- A computer with a modem
We recommend a Pentium class computer with a 56K modem
- Browser software
The latest versions Internet Explorer or Netscape are recommended
- An active phone service from your local telephone company

What Do I Get With Genext's Dial-Up?

- Cost-Effective Solution For The Casual User
- Unlimited Access
- Two E-Mail Addresses
- Ten Megabytes Of Server Space For Personal Web Pages
- Graphic Interface To Manage Your E-Mail Account Via The Web
- Full-Service Local Support By Phone, E-Mail Or In-Office
